Details of special programmes for slow learners and student participation details and outcome records

For the slow performers:

1. All the students were instructed to meet the concerned mentor after the class hour in the evening at least twice a month. They undergo one on one counseling with their concerned mentors (10 students were allotted to a faculty) to identify both their academic and non-academic problems and give them the best support.
2. Tamil Medium students were identified among this pool of slow learners and were given the required assistance and linguistic support for better understanding.

The outcome of the Third Part Completion Test was documented and the identified slow learners (<50%) were asked to bring their parents and meet up with the HOD of Department of Physiology.

1. Evening classes are then conducted for the slow performers by the department staff every Tuesday and Thursday between 4.15 to 5.15 pm. The topics were informed a week ahead and the students were supposed to read the topic at least once before attending the evening class.

The concerned teacher discusses the subject content with the head of the department before going to the class. It was ensured by the head of the department that in the evening class the students were taught the facts and concepts in an interesting way, in simple language within stipulated time, highlighting the important points & emphasizing its clinical relevance. It was a sort of group discussion and not the routine lecture. The students were instructed to keep their text books open in the class and note down the salient points. Each student was given individual attention by either asking questions in between/by asking them to come and draw the relevant pictures in the white board/by asking them to write flow chart in the board/or by asking them to teach the same topic to the other students. They were encouraged to ask more questions. The students were also taught how that particular topic should be presented in the paper on time colorfully& legibly. At the end of the class, a 5 minute test will be conducted and the papers will be corrected immediately and the feedback given.

Here is a list of the evening classes conducted for the batch 2023-24
